

Presskit Phileas

Which strategies has Phileas?

Xenophobia and racism are growing in Europe as it hasn't for decades. Terrorist attacks from the right had been heavenly present in German media for the last 18 months. At the same time refugee camps grow over their poor capacities and Corona compounds the situation further.

The media is not covering these stories anymore and so it also disappears from society's mind.

Now is the time to show humanity - it was done before - to build up a solid base of common tolerance and acceptance for the future.

To do so Phileas aims to connect young people across the seemingly insurmountable borders via smartphones and a solidary initiative to shape future values and to show humanity to the forgotten now.

Phileas provides information like communication guidelines and events as well as the opportunity for feedback on both sides. There is as well for any case the opportunity to speak to a professional trauma psychologist from our team.

The project is now in the test phase. Parts of the project getting optimized and professionalized to ensure our goals and vision of Phileas will become reality.

We will exceed on Hamburg's high school pupils to provide an real life teaching unit on our current geopolitical situation and with a partner of the nonprofit world we can provide a connection of the first groups and scale further.

Phileas is non-party and independent. There is no possibility to gain influence on the project from any kind of grants. Our team works completely non profit on this project.

How does the initiative finance itself?

The initiative works with the philosophy of low financial investments. Single actors of the project finance small costs like website hosting but the human capital definitely stands up front of our work.

Who's on it?

Derived from brainstorming of individuals from Extinction Rebellion (Hamburg city district groups west) and Imagine Zero this idea was taken further and now stands as self-reliant groups for the work of it.
